Emergency procedures noted for loss of heat

What To Do When The Heat's Off

Again this year, I wish to share this with you because it is smart to be prepared in case an emergency should occur.

The Public Health Service (PHS) lists the following steps to take in case of sudden heat loss where you live:

1. Immediately close off a small room (or section) of your house or apartment and move your family into it. Pick a room on the warm side of the house or apartment, usually the south side. Preferably use a room with only one outside wall, rather than a corner room. If the windows are not insulated, cover them on the inside with plastic. Several layers of clear plastic garment bags, the kind you get from the dry cleaners, will do the job. If you do not have those, use a blanket. Experiment with the blanket during the day. Sunlight coming through the window may help warm the room.

2. If the floor is bare, cover it with rugs or blankets. The more the better.

3. If the room has a door, keep it closed. You may have to put a rug or towel against the crack at the bottom of the door to prevent a draft. If you do not have a door to the room, cover the the entrance with blankets.

4. If the room has a fireplace, use it. But make sure there is enough air coming into the room from elsewhere in the house to make a draft. Otherwise the fireplace will smoke. If you run out of firewood, burn tightly rolled newspapers. Do not close the dampers, however, before the fire is completely out.

5. If it is bitterly cold out, you may have to drain water pipes and toilets before the water in them freezes. Learn how to do that from a plumber before the emergency arises. Water in the hot water tank will stay warm for a day or so. But if the house is going to be cold for any length of time, drain the hot water heater also. Save some water for personal use. (This situation would rarely occur in this section of the country.)

6. Wear warm clothes. Layers of clothing work best to contain body heat. Wear heavy socks. Make sure they stay dry. Wear a wool cap.

7. If there is food in the house that should not be allowed to freeze, put it in the refrigerator.

8. Let a neighbor or someone in the community know that you are without heat. This is especially important if you live in an isolated rural area.

9. If your house has no electricity as source of alternate heat, or if you cannot get sufficient warmth from a fireplace, go immediately to a shelter area. If the roads are bad, notify resuce personnel.

If there is a threat of an ice storm be sure to have an adequate supply of drinking water.

Think safety and exercise caution when caring for your family during any type of an emergency situation.

If we can help you with a homemaking problem or question, call us at 352-8244, or write us at P. O. Box 488, Appomattox, Va. 24522.

Homemakers, have a good week!

VEPCO says costs decline

Virginia Electric and Power Company was the only Company among 20 of the nation's largest utilities to experience a decline in the average cost of electricity during the first nine months of 1981.

Vepco's average cost of electricity was 5.14 cents per kilowatt-hour during the first three quarters of 1981, 1.5 percent less than its average cost of electricity during 1980.

Among the other 19 utilities the smallest increase was 4.6 percent and the largest 28.3 percent.

Vepco's average cost of electricity during the first nine months of 1981 was also 12 percent less than the combined average cost of 5.87 cents per kilowatt-hour for the other 19 utilities.

Use those old newspapers

By JAMES A. SMITH
Extension Agent

Do newspapers build up, necessitating frequent trips to disposal sites? Used newspapers can be converted to paper logs. They produce nearly as much heat as wood.

For hand rolling, use a broomstick to wrap around, but first stagger the sheets so the pages are interlocked. After the log is made tie it at least two places, remove the broomstick and brush or dip with melted paraffin.

Another method involves soaking the paper before rolling. A tablespoon of liquid detergent should be added to a tub of water. This heps the paper to stick together and reduces the fly ash when it is burned. Squeeze the excess water from the wilted paper as it is rolled on a broomstick. These rolls need to dry in a well ventilated building before burning.

When burning, it is best to burn newspaper logs with regular logs.

In Appomattox County 62% of the Grade A dairy herds are enrolled in the Dairy Herd Improvement Program. This compares with 59% statewide.

Nearly 175 beef cattle farmers attended "Open House" at Red House Bull Evaluation Center last Wednesday.

Steve Brown, Vice President Appomattox Cattlemen's Association, and Simmental Breeder had the top selling bull at the All-Breeds Sale in Staunton earlier in December. The bull fetched $1775.

Most farmers carry over pesticides. They need to be stored properly if they ar to be useable next year. Read the label carefully for recommend-

Recommended storage temperatures vary widely for example: Azodrin SE store over 70°, Diazinon store above 32°, kelthane no minimum. Other materials have listings in between.

Pesticides need to be stored properly:

Store under lock, inaccessible to children, but not near feed, seed or clothing.

Storage facility should be ventilated and have a warning placard on the door.

Keep pesticides in their original container.

Store herbicides away from other pesticides.

Mark containers with month and year purchased.

Christmas trees are being disposed of this week. Trees that were imported from other states need to be burned. This will help destroy any insects or egg masses on the tree.

* * *

Holiday gift plants require 70 degrees day time temperature and not less than 60 degrees at night. Set pon on crushed stone or gravel in a pan of water to maintain high humidity.

* * *

It is time to mulch strawberries. Pine tags are excellent. Small grain straw may be used. but should be fumigated to kill any seed.

Mulch protects the crowns during cold weather and holds the berries off the soil at harvest time.

1981 was a good pecan year in Appomattox County. You may want to consider planting several trees this spring (late March, early April). Plp at least two possibly rec varieties. The northern varieties will do best in the area. Three recommended varieties are: Colby, Peruque and Stark Hardy Giant.

Pecans can be used as a shade tree as well as a source of nuts.

ASCS Today

ASCS invites comments on burley tobacco marketing quota

Tobacco growers and other interested persons are invited to submit written recommendations on the national marketing quote for 1982-crop burley tobacco to USDA's Stabilization and Conservation Service.

The comments must be received in Washington on or before Jan. 13 to be considered. Under current law, the amount of the national quota for burley tobacco for the 1982-83 marketing year must be announced by Feb. 1.

A public meeting will be held in Lexington, Ky., to discuss supply and demand for burley tobacco and other factors relating to quota determinations. The meeting will be held on Jan. 8 in the E.S. Good Dairy Barn, University of Kentucky.

Burley tobacco growers in the nation are expected to produce a 717-million pound crop for 1981, 29 percent larger than in 1980.

Tobacco comments should be addressed to the Director, Analysis Division, USDA-ASCS, P. O. Box 2415, Washington, D. C. 20013.

Grain condition and storage structures important

To prevent economic loss and protect stored grain from insect damage, farmers participating in the commodity loan and reserve programs are required to make year-round inspections of crops destined for future markets. The farm-stored grain needs to be inspected not only in warm weather but also during the winter.

Insects in stored grain go almost dormant for the winter. Grain near the outer surfaces of the bin cools before that located in the center, and as the grain cools, insects will move toward the center of the bin where the grain is still warm. The larger the bin, the longer it takes the grain to cool.

Stored grain also contains moisture that may shift from one location to another, mainly because of temperature differences that develop within the structure when surface and perimeter areas of the grain cool. Mositure from warm grain moves to cooler parts of the structure, causing damp areas within the grain that favor insect activity and mold development.

When determining eligibility for the grain reserve program or commodity loans, ASCS considers the condition of the storage structure and the commodity stored within the structure. Farmers are responsible for any loss in quality or quantity caused by insect infestation or rodent damage. If there is evidence of insect infestation, the grain should be fumigated as soon as possible. Liquid fumigants are most commonly used and should be applied on a calm day.

Farmers are encouraged to continue using proper storage and handling methods to preserve farm-stored grain year-round.
